Melbourne Metro covers an enormous range of housing styles — from inner-city terraces and warehouse conversions to sprawling outer-suburb family homes — so what your move looks like depends a lot on where in the metro area you're headed.

What to Know Before You Move

Inner Melbourne suburbs (Fitzroy, Collingwood, Richmond) often mean narrow laneways, on-street parking permits and older terrace homes with tight staircases. Outer metro areas (Werribee, Cranbourne, Pakenham) tend to offer easier truck access but longer drive times, particularly during peak hour.

Local Moving Tips

- Melbourne's weather — famously changeable, so having furniture properly wrapped against sudden rain is worth confirming, especially in the cooler months - Council parking permits — many inner suburbs require a permit for a moving truck to park on the street; check with your local council ahead of time - Protect your floors — polished floorboards are common across Melbourne's older homes; floor protection in traffic areas prevents scratches during the move

Choosing a Local Removalist

Look for a removalist genuinely experienced across Melbourne's different suburb types — an inner-city terrace move requires different planning to an outer-suburb family home. Confirm AFRA accreditation and police-checked crews handling your move directly.

Packing Fragile Items

Ask how glass, marble and artwork are individually wrapped and protected — Melbourne's older homes in particular can mean more careful manoeuvring through narrow doorways and staircases.

Making Moving Day Easier

A Melbourne Metro move, wherever it takes you within the city, deserves a removalist who understands the local variation in housing and access. Get a clear, written quote and confirm your team's experience with your specific suburb type before booking.
