Moving day doesn't have to be stressful. With the right approach, you can protect your belongings and arrive at your new home with everything intact.

Before You Start Packing

Gather all necessary materials first: bubble wrap, cardboard boxes, padding, and quality packing tape. Ensure all box seams are well-taped to hold weight. We recommend tea chest boxes for larger, heavier items and book/wine boxes for smaller fragile goods.

Packing Fragile Items: Step-by-Step

Glass and Marble Items: - Wrap with bubble wrap as your first protective layer - Add padding as a second layer - Place carefully in a sturdy box - Transport on the longest side—never flat or upright - Mark cardboard clearly if it contains glass

Plates and Bowls: - Pack vertically across the box width - Bundle no more than five items together - This arrangement prevents breakage from stacking pressure

Artwork and Pictures: - Wrap artwork with bubble wrap first - Add a padding layer - Cover the outside with cardboard - Alternatively, use specialized picture boxes that eliminate extra padding needs - Never bring pictures into storage with only bubble wrap protection

Glasses: - Position the drinking edge down for optimal protection

During Transport

For interstate and container moves, use proper padding and boxing to prevent damage. Place items against container walls with padding between goods and walls. Ensure draping is done properly—not simply thrown over goods. Quality stacking during transport prevents damage across long distances.

Important Restrictions

Fragile Removals does NOT pack: - Open liquids - Open wet foods - Flammable liquids - Pressurized canisters (such as deodorant)

Professional Touch

When items are too delicate or risky, it's worth calling professionals. We treat every item as valuable and worthy of expert care, ensuring stress-free moving so you can focus on the excitement of your new home.

With these tips and professional help, your fragile items will arrive safely at your new location.
